

Notice to all UG & PG Students

It has been notified number of times to all students (including final year students) of both UG & PG courses that they should attend their classes regularly in order to obtain 75% (Min.) attendance in theory classes in current academic session 2016-2017, failing which defaulting students will be debarred to appear in the University examination.

In order to avoid any loss of college working days, all students are being advised to attend college on the working days prior to Durga Puja Holidays commencing on 7th October 2016.

Defaulting students (i.e. students not attending college/classes) on the college days between the period from 1st October to 6th October 2016, will loose their attendance since said days/classes will be considered while calculating their attendance for the current semester session.

Students therefore at their own interest should attend college/classes between the period from 1st October to 6th October 2016.
